Neil:

I am rather successful in my studies, though I'm not a bookworm and I don't want to devote much time to reading and learning in my free time... Well, I don't need to do that, because I always listen to the teachers when they are explaining things. I think it's really important,

I can learn a lot like that. So all I need to do at home is to look through the notes I made at the lesson.

Sam:

I am rather good at school, but it takes time. I can't say that I am good at learning new things. Now I'm sixteen, and I know well that I must devote more time than some of my classmates to studies. Some of them always listen to the teachers at the lessons, others have a good memory. I think that's why they need the less time to do homework.

Henry:

I should say that nearly everything I read or hear stays in my head. Sometimes I am not attentive at school but it won't take me long to memorize things reading a book at home. So I am doing quite well at school, though my teachers and parents say that I could do better.

Harry:

There is a timetable on the wall in my room. I know when and what to do. My timetable is flexible, because sometimes you can spend more time on your Maths or English than you plan, but anyhow it works. Usually I plan to do more difficult subjects. And it is written in the timetable! I don't waste time on thinking what to begin with. I just start.
